On April 6, 2009, SupportSoft, Inc. (the “Company” or “SupportSoft”) sent the following message to its customers in connection with the announcement that the Company had entered into an Asset Purchase Agreement with Consona Corporation and had agreed to sell its Enterprise business to Consona:

Valued Customer,

I want to personally inform you of some exciting news. Earlier today, SupportSoft announced that we have entered into an agreement to sell our Enterprise software business to Consona Corporation (“Consona”). Included in the transaction are SupportSoft products used by digital service providers, corporate IT departments and managed service providers to resolve technical problems for their customers and employees.

Consona is a substantial, financially sound company that provides software and services to more than 4,500 companies, ranging from small businesses to Global 2000 enterprises, across a variety of industries. Consona’s Customer Relationship Management (CRM) division offers a suite of software and services that drive the customer experience—with a specialty in after-sale interactions in customer service and support.

The acquisition is subject to customary closing conditions, including stockholder approval, and is expected to close in the second quarter of 2009. Until the deal closes, each company will continue to operate independently, and it is business as usual.

The combined product set of enabling technologies from SupportSoft and Consona will drive broader features and capabilities into your current SupportSoft products. Consona has emphasized to me that it is committed to continued investment in SupportSoft’s existing and future product pipeline. In addition to an extended solution offering, Consona will also bring a broadened worldwide sales and service presence, expanded industry, product and process expertise and substantial resources for growth.

Between now and the expected completion of the transaction, there will be no changes to your existing SupportSoft contacts or processes. After the closing, as the business transitions to Consona, we will give you advanced notice of any changes. Both Consona and SupportSoft are committed to working closely together to ensure you have access to the information, products, services and support you need to run your business.

In the coming weeks, our energy and resources will focus on making this transition as seamless as possible. All of us at SupportSoft appreciate your trust and, along with Consona, will continue to work hard to earn your business by remaining fully committed to our existing customers and markets, as well as maintaining and increasing the quality of innovation, support, and service you have come to expect.

Should you have any questions please feel free to contact me or your local sales representative directly. We will continue to stay in close touch and keep you informed of additional information as it is available.

Thank you,

Josh Pickus
